About permanent jewelry

Permanent jewelry is a custom-fit chain that is welded closed with a small, quick weld instead of a clasp. There is no needle and the weld does not touch your skin - a protective pad is placed between the chain and your skin during the weld.

I understand and agree that:

- The piece is welded closed and is meant to be worn continuously; it has no clasp.
- To remove it, the small jump ring is simply snipped with scissors - I can keep the chain and have it re-welded later for a small fee.
- I should remove or protect my piece during MRIs, medical procedures, or any work involving strong magnets or electrical current.
- Gold-filled and sterling silver are durable but can bend, stretch, or break with rough wear; normal wear and tear is not the fault of Trendlingzz.
- I will share any metal allergies or sensitivities before the weld. Trendlingzz is not responsible for skin reactions to metals.
- I am responsible for checking my piece for comfort and fit, and for seeking care if I notice irritation, pinching, or injury.
- The deposit paid at booking holds my appointment time and is applied toward my piece.

Release of liability

I release Trendlingzz and its staff from any liability for injury, loss, allergic reaction, or damage to property arising from the permanent jewelry service or from wearing my piece, except in cases of gross negligence. I confirm the information I have provided is accurate.
